The Survey District on Prince George's Street comprises five single family dwellings. They range in height from one-and-one-half-stories to two-stories. The houses were all constructed circa 1940, except 304 Prince George's Street, which was constructed in the late 20th century. The houses vary in style and configuration.

210 Prince George's Street is one-and-one-half stories in height and four bays wide. The wood frame dwelling has a side gable roof and is clad in narrow horizontal siding. The main entrance is marked by a front gable roof, arched portico supported by Tuscan columns.

300 Prince George's Street is a one-and-one-half story Colonial Revival-style dwelling. This brick house is three bays wide and has a one-story, side porch. The side porch is screened-in and has a half-hipped roof. The steeply pitched side gable roof is pierced by two, front gable roof dormers. The dormers are centered above the paired, 6/6, double-hung, sash windows that flank the main entry. The main entry is formed by a front gable projecting bay. The entry is marked by a wood, Colonial Revival-style door surround and a wood paneled door with lights. The paired windows
